About me

I am a fresh graduate of Telkom University's Information Technology programme, competent in the field of information technology, with a unique combination of technical expertise, design understanding, and analytical skills. My expertise includes web development focused on UI/UX design and frontend development, as demonstrated through my internship at the Rantai Khatulistiwa Law Firm and my independent project to create a Sundanese script learning application based on a website. My focus is on ensuring that digital solutions have intuitive and effective designs. In addition, I have significant strengths in data analysis and research. My experience as a freelance Online Researcher at Upwork and my studies during university have honed my ability to analyse data, identify trends, and generate actionable insights, which are important skills for strategic decision-making. On the non-technical side, my involvement in the Permib student organisation (Sponsorship and External Affairs department) has strengthened my strategic communication, negotiation, and effective team coordination skills. With a combination of a background in Computer Science, design skills (UI/UX), and deep expertise in data analysis and research, I am confident that I can contribute to the Company with data-driven insights and superior digital solutions.
